NEW PACT IS PRAISED, CRITICIZED

Applause And Hisses For Trade Plan Largely On Party Lines

BENEFITS CLAIMED; IDLENESS RETORT

Negotiations Under Way To Include Antipodes And South Africa

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—Administration officials studied the criticism and warm praise of the new trade agreement with Great Britain and Canada Friday for its promise of opportunity and progress that other parts of the world face.

The budget still indicates that the British and Canadian agreements will be a boon to the economy, but the critics say that the pact is a good advertisement for the British and Canadian economies, but that it is a bad advertisement for the American economy.

Some Department officials were particularly pleased that the pact would mean a new era of trade with the British and Canadian economies, but the critics say that the pact is a good advertisement for the British and Canadian economies, but that it is a bad advertisement for the American economy.
