

Friedrich* Anticipation Guide

Before Reading: Read each statement and think about whether you agree or disagree with it. In the Before column, mark an “A” if you agree with the statement. Mark a “D” if you disagree with the statement.

After Reading: Read each statement again and think about whether you now agree or disagree with it, carefully considering what you learned from reading. In the After column, mark an “A” if you agree with the statement. Mark a “D” if you disagree with the statement.

Before	Statement	After
	1. To be a good citizen, a person should always follow the laws and do what the government says.
	2. A person’s only concern should be the well-being of their own family.
	3. People must always stand up for their friends.
	4. A person who sees something bad happening and doesn’t do anything to stop it is a coward.
	5. The best kind of society is one in which everyone has the same values.
	6. People can rely on the government to have their best interest at heart and to protect them.
	7. It is difficult to be friends with someone who is different from you.
	8. Ordinary people don’t usually have a big impact on their community.
	9. Children and teens can have a significant impact on their community, even though they are young.
	10. If an issue does not impact you directly, you should mind your own business instead of getting involved.
	11. If you follow a leader and end up doing something bad, it’s not your fault; you were just going along with the group.
	12. Part of being a teenager is forming your own opinions about the world instead of believing what others tell you.

Friedrich* Reflection Guide

Step 1: Look at your Before and After answers on the Anticipation Guide. For each statement, mark a “Y” in the Change column if your answer changed. Mark an “N” in the Change column if your answer did not change.

Step 2: Choose one statement about which your opinion changed. Reflect on this change by answering the following questions:

1. Write the number of the statement about which your mind changed. Did you agree or disagree with it initially? Why?
2. What parts of Friedrich dealt with this issue? Be specific and draw from the text.
3. Why did you change your mind after reading Friedrich?
4. How does this new opinion impact your life and the way you see the world?

Step 3: Choose one statement about which your opinion was strengthened. Reflect on this continuity by answer the following questions:

1. Write the number of the statement about which your mind did not change. Did you agree or disagree with it initially? Why?
2. What parts of Friedrich dealt with this issue? Be specific and draw from the text.
3. Why do you still feel this way after reading Friedrich?
4. How does this strengthened opinion impact your life and the way you see the world?

Step 4: Read the following quote and answer the questions.

“Walking with a friend in the dark is better than walking alone in the light.”

-Helen Keller
